

Don't let her size fool you — this little mare has a huge heart and a ton of try! Standing 14 hands, she'll outwork horses twice her size and has proven herself where it counts.

Ridden by Griffin Purdy, she spent most of the spring and into the summer earning her keep in the branding pen. She'll go all day with no quit and is a blast to sort on, with plenty of cow and no hesitation about getting right in the middle of the action. She rides out confidently alone or in a group and takes new situations in stride.

She has been used to one-man doctor, tie off, rope heifers, and has also been worked on the Heel-O-Matic. She catches on quickly, moves nicely off your leg, and not much fazes her. She has a good walk, trot and lope, and when you ask her to stop, she stops hard.

With her athletic ability, quick mind and willingness to work, she has the potential to go several directions. She would make a handy ranch horse, heel horse, breakaway prospect, or barrel horse. She has been around the barrels a few times and is already catching on quickly.

This mare is fun, gritty and willing, with the kind of heart you can't teach. She does her best when ridden consistently and will be best suited to a confident rider who can continue developing her and bring out her full potential.

If you're looking for a smaller horse with a big motor, plenty of heart, and the ability to go on and make something special, don't overlook this mare.

Remi is a sharp-looking 3-year-old AQHA bay gelding standing 14.2 hands, with the brains, build and bloodlines to make an outstanding prospect. He is straight, correct, athletic and sound with no blemishes, good feet, and is currently shod on all four.

Remi has been started on a 400-head cow-calf operation, giving him a practical foundation and exposure to everyday ranch life. He is sane, sensible and easy to be around. He's good to catch, stands tied, has excellent ground manners, and is good to get on and off. His groundwork is solid, and he is quick to figure things out when introduced to something new.

This gelding takes a busy environment in stride. He has been exposed to kids, chickens, dogs, quads, tractors and the everyday commotion of a working barnyard without making a fuss. He has also been around teams and remains calm and quiet. In the herd, he falls in the middle to lower end of the pecking order.

Remi is good to shoe and has the kind of quiet, willing disposition that makes him enjoyable to work with. With continued consistent riding and experience, he has the temperament and potential to very easily develop into a kids' horse down the road.

If you're looking for a quality young gelding with brains, bloodlines, athletic ability and a solid start, Remi is the kind that's ready to take on and develop into a dependable ranch, arena or all-around horse.

Major is a 5-year-old AQHA Sorrel gelding standing 15.2 HH with the size, disposition, and experience to make a dependable using horse. He is quiet, easy-going, and smooth moving, with the kind of personality that makes him easy for just about anybody to get along with.

For the past three years, Major has been ridden extensively in the community pasture, where he has put on plenty of real-world miles. He has been used for doctoring and moving cattle and is experienced travelling through bush, mud, creeks, and rough country. He knows what a day's work is and has the practical ranch experience that only comes from time on the job.

Major has also spent the last two years working in the branding pen, adding even more experience to his résumé.

If you're looking for a big, quiet, good-minded young gelding with plenty of ranch miles already under his belt, Major is well worth a look. At just five years old, he has a great foundation, lots of experience, and many good years ahead of him.
